	Saturday 22nd February	Sunday 23rd February
Morning	Subject: Topic: How? Test?	Subject: Topic: How? Test?
Afternoon	Subject: Topic: How? Test?	Subject: Topic: How? Test?
Evening	Subject: Topic: How? Test?	Subject: Topic: How? Test?

How to use your Revision Planner

Subject: Biology

Topic: Exchange and Transport in Animals

How? Create a mind map which describes all key words (bold in revision guide)

Test? Complete questions in Biology workbook on topic and compare against mark scheme.

Or you could find relevant questions in past papers?

1. Identify your subject AND the topic you will revise. The topics you choose should be those your feel weaker on.
2. Identify how you will revise this topic. Using a range of techniques such and mind maps, flash cards or creating visual images to express your understanding will ensure that your revision is active and means the information is more likely to stay in your head!
3. Identify how you will TEST YOURSELF. You need to know whether your revision has been successful or not and give yourself a good pat on the back if the questions are now easier to answer!

Test? Complete questions in Biology workbook on topic and compare against mark scheme.

Or you could find relevant questions in past papers?

1. Identify your subject AND the topic you will revise. The topics you choose should be those your feel weaker on.
2. Identify how you will revise this topic. Using a range of techniques such and mind maps, flash cards or creating visual images to express your understanding will ensure that your revision is active and means the information is more likely to stay in your head!
3. Identify how you will TEST YOURSELF. You need to know whether your revision has been successful or not and give yourself a good pat on the back if the questions are now easier to answer!
